APM Project Management Qualification

Ennerdale Bridge trading as PM Academy
Ennerdale Bridge is accredited by APM

Overview

The Association for Project Management (APM) is the chartered professional body for project management in the UK. It sets the benchmark for best practice, professional standards and career development across the project profession.

Through its recognised Body of Knowledge, qualifications framework and professional membership pathways, APM supports individuals and organisations to deliver better outcomes in complex environments. Whether you are building your career in project delivery or looking to formalise your experience with a respected qualification, the APM PMQ provides a robust and practical foundation.

The APM Project Management Qualification (PMQ) is an advanced, knowledge-based qualification aligned to the APM Body of Knowledge. It is designed for aspiring or current project managers who need a deeper understanding of the tools, techniques and leadership behaviours required to manage projects effectively. The course covers structured approaches to governance, scope, scheduling, risk, quality, stakeholder engagement and leadership, helping learners develop into confident and capable project professionals.
